Blackwell Concerns Prove Overblown but +$1B Beats No Longer in Style

Despite lighter than expected guide we think the key LT concerns are addressed and see it clearing the way for a strong start to CY25.

We get why investors may pick at this print from a superficial perspective but think that updates on key issues all leaned more positive. On one hand, guidance was lighter than the $2B beat the market has become accustomed to, GMs are lighter, and opex was higher. China also increased substantially but is trending considerably below the 20-25% of DC it had run at before restrictions. More importantly, Blackwell delay concerns are addressed with several $B expected in Q4, Hopper is up seq. for the remainder of the year, and in aggregate it's clear there is no air pocket. The company also went out of the way to talk about substantial growth next year. The stock reaction appears to be more thesis changing level versus what we think is likely a more conservative guide amidst a product transition. We would add on weakness.

Why OVERWEIGHT?

We are OW as the company has long-term sustainable growth led by a large lead in GPUs for AI in DC, with further Edge opportunities (Autos, robots, etc.) and a competitive moat around a large portion of the market.

Upside case USD 180.00

Our upside case of $180 is based upon 38x our upside CY25E non-GAAP EPS of $4.75, which assumes larger TAM for AI in the DC, higher Networking attach, and higher GMs.

Downside case USD 80.00

Our downside case of $80 is based upon 27x our downside CY25E non-GAAP EPS of $3.00, which assumes a correction of AI spending in the DC, a slower Auto ramp and pricing/share pressure.

Upside/Downside scenarios

DC Compute Strength Drives Another Beat: July revenue ahead at $30.0B (+15% Q/Q, vs. St. $28.9B) driven again by Data Center, which was ahead at $26.3B (+16% Q/Q, vs. St. $25.1B) on continued demand for the Hopper computing platform for LLM, recommendation engines and generative AI applications. Within DC, Compute revenue was $22.6B (+17% Q/Q) and Networking was $3.7B (+16% Q/Q) with strength from Ethernet for AI revenue doubling in the quarter. Additionally, cloud providers were 45% of DC revenue in July. Gaming came in slightly above at $2.88B (+9% Q/Q vs. St. at $2.79B), due to higher sales of GeForce RTX 40 Series GPUs and game consoles SOCs helped by the back-to-school season. OEM/Other also came in above at $88M (+13% Q/Q vs. St. $78M). Auto came in roughly in-line at $346M (+5% Q/Q) due to continued strength in AI Cockpit and self-driving platforms. ProViz also came in roughly in-line at $454M (+6% Q/Q), but was up sequentially as a result of the continued ramp of RTX GPU workstations. GMs slightly beat at 75.7% (vs. St. at 75.5%) but came in lower sequentially due to inventory provisions for low-yielding Blackwell materials and higher mix of new products in the Data Center. Opex came in lower at $2.8B (vs. St. at $2.9B) but was up again Q/Q due to higher compensation and benefits. All-in, this netted EPS above at $0.68 (vs. St. $0.64).

DC Again Drives the Beat, Though Smaller Than What We're Used to: Guides October revenue ahead to $32.5B (+8% Q/Q vs. St. $31.9B) on another quarter of stronger DC spend. We model Data Center up +11% Q/Q with +12% Q/Q growth in Compute and 5% Q/Q growth in Networking. We model Gaming up +5%, Auto up +5%, ProViz up +3%, and OEM & Other flat Q/Q. Guides GM in-line at 75.0%, but lower sequentially due to unfavorable mix of new DC products. Guides opex higher to $3.0B (vs. St. $2.87B), OIE to an income of $350M, and tax rate to 17%. All in, this nets an implied EPS of $0.73, above Street at $0.71. Looking further, management reiterated that GMs are expected in the mid-70% range for the year (implying down Q4) and revised opex higher to the to mid to upper 40% range (from low-40% range) for FY25. Additionally, management expects to ship several billions of dollars in Blackwell revenue in FQ4 and for Hopper shipments to increase in each quarter of the 2H of FY25.

Guide to the Barclays Fundamental Equity Research Rating System:

Our coverage analysts use a relative rating system in which they rate stocks as Overweight, Equal Weight or Underweight (see definitions below) relative to other companies covered by the analyst or a team of analysts that are deemed to be in the same industry (the "industry coverage universe").

In addition to the stock rating, we provide industry views which rate the outlook for the industry coverage universe as Positive, Neutral or Negative (see definitions below). A rating system using terms such as buy, hold and sell is not the equivalent of our rating system. Investors should carefully read the entire research report including the definitions of all ratings and not infer its contents from ratings alone.

Stock Rating

Overweight - The stock is expected to outperform the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Equal Weight - The stock is expected to perform in line with the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Underweight - The stock is expected to underperform the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Rating Suspended - The rating and target price have been suspended temporarily due to market events that made coverage impracticable or to comply with applicable regulations and/or firm policies in certain circumstances including where the Investment Bank of Barclays Bank PLC is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or strategic transaction involving the company.

Industry View

Positive - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are improving.

Neutral - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are steady, neither improving nor deteriorating.

Negative - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are deteriorating.

Below is the list of companies that constitute the "industry coverage universe":

Environmental, Social, and Governance (‘ESG’) Related Research: There is currently no globally accepted framework or definition (legal, regulatory or otherwise) of, nor market consensus as to what constitutes, an ‘ESG’, ‘green’, ‘sustainable’, ‘climate-friendly’ or an equivalent company, investment, strategy or consideration or what precise attributes are required to be eligible to be categorised by such terms. This means there are different ways to evaluate a company or an investment and so different values may be placed on certain ESG credentials as well as adverse ESG-related impacts of companies and ESG controversies. The evolving nature of ESG considerations, models and methodologies means it can be challenging to definitively and universally classify a company or investment under an ESG label and there may be areas where such companies and investments could improve or where adverse ESG-related impacts or ESG controversies exist. The evolving nature of sustainable finance related regulations and the development of jurisdiction-specific regulatory criteria also means that there is likely to be a degree of divergence as to the interpretation of such terms in the market. We expect industry guidance, market practice, and regulations in this field to continue to evolve. Any references to ‘sustainable’, ‘sustainability’, ‘green’, ‘social’, ‘ESG’, ‘ESG considerations’, ‘ESG factors’, ‘ESG issues’ or other similar or related terms in this document are as used in our public disclosures and not to any jurisdiction-specific regulatory definition or other interpretation of these terms unless specified otherwise.
